Monday, November 1*ſt*, 1742. [Numb 449]

LONDON, July 29

ON Monday the 12th Inſtant, at a Court-Martial on board His Majeſty's Yacht the Charlotte, Sir Charles Hardy, Rear-Admiral of the Blue Squadron, Preſident, was a Trial on Capt. Arthur Upton, for the Loſs of His Majeſty's Snow Saltaſh, by running the ſaid Snow aſhore the 16th of April laſt, being in Chace of the Enemy It appeared to the Court that all poſſible Endeavours were uſed to recover the Snow, but ineffectual: That on the 18th following three Spaniſh Privateers came out of Ayamonte, and attack'd the Snow, but were repuls'd and left her; to ſave his People from being made Priſoners, and the Snow from falling into the Enemy's Hands, the Captain ſet her on Fire, and ſhe blew up. The whole Matter appearing to the Satisfaction of the Court, and that Captain Upton had done his Duty, he was honourably acquitted

We hear that Commodore Anſon has taken one of the Acapulco Ships, as ſhe was going to the Philipine Iſlands; ſhe is reckoned worth upwards of 200,000 Pounds.

Yeſterday came Advice that a Swediſh Officer, who was going to execute a Commiſſion at the Court of France, was ſeiz'd at Dantzick, with all his Papers, ſome of which, it's ſaid, relate to the Conſpiracy in Ruſſia

Yeſterday came Advice that the Neptune, Capt. Holding, lately fitted out at the Expence of the Government to cruiſe in Queſt of the French Spaniſh Privateers, has retaken three Prizes in Dunkirk Road, was in Queſt of a 4th, and drove the Privateer aſhore; the Captain and Men all fled on the Country.

July 31 We are inform'd, that a Boat belonging to one of our Men of War, ſtation'd to cruiſe off Dunkirk, being ordered aſhore at that Place, the French Soldiers call'd to the People in the Boat to keep off, or they would fire at them; but they being reſolv'd to execute their Orders (and probably believing the French would not do it) row'd on, when on a ſudden they receiv'd a Volley of ſmall Shot, which kill'd Four Men, and wounded ſome others.

An Extract of Letter from Helvoett, dated Sunday laſt

'I ſail'd from Harwich Yeſterday, about ſix o'Clock in the Afternoon, and after a pleaſant Paſſage landed this Forenoon at Helvoet. We were chaſed this Morning ſeveral Hours by a Privateer, but there being a briſk Gale of Wind we out ſail'd him, tho' he made all the Sail he could to overtake us, and upon our landing, had the diſagreeable Sight of a fine Ship ſent in by the Privateer this Morning, who afterwards went in Queſt of us. And ſince I have been here ſhe has ſent in two more, one loaded with Rice, and other Goods, and the other a Ship of 400 Tons, from Norway: There is one of the Prizes loaded with Bale Goods, and worth 20,000 l. Sterling. The Privateer that took them is a Dunkirker, and has not a Spaniard on board of her. She has in 8 Days taken nine Ships, all upon our own Coaſt. And 'twou'd grieve the Heart of any one to hear the Sailors tell of the cruel Uſage of the Capt. of the Privateer towards them; and the Men they have ſent in with the Prizes are the moſt ill looking Fellows that e'er were ſeen; and until they had ſtrip'd our poor Sailors of their Cloaths, were eaten up with Vermin, and had nothing but Rags; and it makes me ſhudder when I ſee the French Raſcals ſwaggering on board theſe Ships, a Plank of which their Captain and Crew were never worth before. Here are now in the Haven a Privateer and Four Prizes, and more are expected in every Moment; and if there is not an immediate Stop put to the Privateers, this Harbour will ſoon be more famous for Engliſh Prizes that ever that of St. Sebaſtian was.'

Naples, July 17. Five Engliſh Men of War, of 50, 60 and 70 Guns, arrived the 10th Inſtant before the Port of Brindiſi, and ſoon after the Commodore, or Admiral, ſent an Officer aſhore with the following Declaration to the Governor: 'That as the preſent Conjuncture required 'that his Britannick Majeſty's Ships ſhould cruize in the 'Adriadick, and have a Port there, wherein to retire freely and ſafely in caſe of Storms or other Accidents, it 'was thought proper to notify to him (the Governor) that 'the Port of Brindiſi appear'd the fitteſt for this Purpoſe: 'Therefore it was hoped that his Majeſty the King of the 'Two Scicilies, embracing a Neutrality, would not refuſe 'to grant his Demand, for the Security of which the Engliſh, at the ſame time, requir'd, that all the Artillery 'of the Caſtle and Forts of Brindiſi be brought on Board 'his Britannick Majeſty's Ships, as well as the Train 'which had been lately brought to that Port in order to 'be ſent to the Duke de Montemar's Army. And that if 'the Governor refus'd to comply with theſe Terms, the 'Engliſh Commodore had expreſs Orders to deſtroy the 'Town.' The Governor having obtain'd ſix Days to inform the King of this Affair, ſet out immediately and arrived here the 15th The Council of State having aſſembled, it was reſolved, that the Demands of the Engliſh were ſo inſolent to deſerve the leaſt Attention, and that the neceſſary Precautions muſt be taken to prevent a Surprize from them The Deciſion of the Council was immediately communicated to the Governor of Brindiſi, who ſet out the Night following with Orders to ſignify to the Engliſh Commodore, that if he undertook any Thing againſt that Port, they were both able and willing to defend it: Four Couriers were diſpatch'd the ſame Night with Orders for the Militia of Apulia to march to Brindiſi. This extraordinary Demand of the Engliſh has greatly alarm'd the Court. We are very impatient to hear whether the Engliſh Commandant will put his Menaces in Execution: Some ſay that Rear-Admiral Leſtock commands thoſe five Ships in Perſon, and others ſay it is Captain Ambroſe. It is certain that the Inhabitants of this Capital are very weary of a War, which has loaded them with Taxes, expoſes them to perpetual Hazards, and cannot poſſibly bring the King or his Kingdom the leaſt Advantage.

London, Auguſt 3. On the 29th ult. Part of the French Army, to the Number of 6000 Men, (4000 Horſe and 2000 Foot) made a Sally on the Auſtrians before Prague; but were oppoſed by the latter, with their Huſſars in Front, who ſo bravely attack'd them, Sword in Hand, that they thought proper to retire, after having loſt upwards of 1000 Men. In this Rencounter the Duke de Beaumont was taken Priſoner, as was likewiſe his Brother Count Clermont, who is mortally wounded. The Huſſars purſued them even to the Gates of Prague.

This Morning a Party of Horſe Guards paſs'd through the City, in their Way to Graveſend, there to embark for Flanders. They made a fine Appearance, and were ſeemingly in the higheſt Spirits, hoping before they Return, to revenge the Inſults offer'd their King and Country, and to render deſpicable a Nation which has ſo long time aim'd at Univerſal Monarchy!

It is ſaid that Orders are ſent to the Weſt-Indies for the Return of General Wentworth, with the Reſidue of the Land Forces.

The Court of Portugal has lately made a conſiderable Remittance to Vienna, for the Support of of her Hungarian Majeſty in the preſent juſt and glorious War, in which ſhe is engaged, for the Maintenance of the Houſe of Auſtria, and ſecuring the Independancy of Europe.

August 5. Extract of a Letter from on board Capt Rowley's Ship dated Villa Franca, June 30, 1742.

'We have been cruizing off Toulon for six Weeks, 'where the Spaniſh Fleet lies: We go in ſo cloſe to them 'as to ſee their Colours, with eight Sail only, and they 'have thirty We took on Eaſter Sunday, a breaſt of 'Toulon, ſeven Sail; and ſince that, twenty-four French, 'Spaniſh and Dutch, ſome of them of great Value. We 'took one Dutchman mounted 26 Guns, with three Cheſts 'of Money, and other valuable Goods; and a Frenchman, 'laden with fine Cloaths, for Don Philip and his Court; 'the reſt Military Stores for the Spaniſh Camp. If I live 'you will hear more the next Letter, for we hourly ex- and ouer them to force their Way by Land thro' Savoy. The 'two Camps are now in Sight of each other. The Sardi- 'nians are fine Men, and I am certain they will conquer, 'for they are full of Spirits I went eight Miles from 'the Town of Nice to ſee both Camps. The Spaniards 'have a vaſt Hill to come over, and a Hundred of the 'Sardinians can do more Damage than a Thouſand of the 'Spaniards, the Way is ſo narrow and ſteep All the 'Soldiers of Nice are gone to reinforce the Paſs, and ſome 'of our Soldiers to guard the Town; all the Guns of the 'Hoſpital Ships are ſent aſhore to make a Faſcine Battery, 'and two Ninety Gun Ships are ready to knock the Town 'upon them if they ſhould come any other Way into it

Auguſt 7. According to an exact Liſt of the Forces in the Electorate of Hanover, they amount to 26,580 Men, which, with 6 00 Heſſians in the Pay of Great-Britain, will form an Army of near 33 000 Men and as Occaſion requires may be augmented by the Forces of our Allies.

We hear there are 16000 Men now at work at Dunkirk, to perfect the Scheme of making a Communication between Mardyke and that Place.

There are Letters from Conſtantinople dated June 25, which ſay, that a bloody Engagement had happened between the Perſians and the Turks near the City of Erzerum, in which the latter had been totally defeated, which was followed a few Days after by the Loſs of the City

Auguſt 31 Some Engliſh Men of War have block'd up the Harbour of Porto Hercole, of which Cardinal Aquaviva had ſent an Expreſs to the King of Naples.

On the 13th laſt anchor'd in the Port of Leghorn, and ſail'd again the ſame Evening his Majeſty's the Durſley-Galley, Capt. De L'Angle, who left off Corſica, Commodore Martin, with five Men of War, four Bomb Veſſels, and their Tenders, on their Courſe to Naples.

The unexpected Arrival in England, of the Earl of Stair, our Ambaſſador to the States General, occaſions various Speculations He left Holland ſo privately, that his Servants knew nothing of his Journey 'till he was in the Coach

CHARLES-TOWN, November 1

On Tueſday laſt his Majeſty's Snow the Hawk returned into Rebellion Road, from St Simon's, with Diſpatches from General Oglethorpe, to Colonel Dunbar and Captain Broderick Commander of his Majeſty's Ship the Shoreham, in Conſequence of which, we hear, a Council of War was held the next Day by the Lieutenant Governor, and the principal Land and Sea Officers. After which his Honour met his Majeſty's Council of this Province. And, ſince that another Council of War hath been held; the Reſult of which we do not pretend to know.

On Saturday, being his Majeſty's Birth Day, the Charles-Town Regiment and the firſt and ſecond Troops of Horſe-Guards, were reviewed by his Honour the Lieutenant Governor; and his Majeſty's Health, and that of the Royal Family was drank under the Diſcharge of the Cannon at Broughton's Battery, which was followed by the Diſcharge of the Cannon alſo at Fort Johnſon After which his Honour entertained, in a very elegant Manner, all his Majeſty's Officers, Civil and Military, with a great many other Gentlemen of Diſtinction; the Number of which was the more conſiderable, as all the Officers of Colonel Dunbar's Corps from Jamaica were preſent. In the Evening there was a handſome Ball for a very numerous Aſſembly of Gentlemen and Ladies, and a very genteel Entertainment. The whole Day was full of Teſtimonies of Joy and Satisfaction, and a decent Regard was ſhewn to the Approach of the next Day, by the Bells Aſſembled.
